

ABSTRACTS
 Author Presenting Paper

41 Issues of education for dairy foods scientists. R. Marshall*, Department of Food Science, University of Missouri, Columbia.

The discussion will reveal the issues under the headings of 1) quantity of graduates needed at the three degree levels, 2) quantities of students available for the educational programs, 3) content of the curricula at participating universities, 4) methods of teaching, 5) application of electronic technology to both teaching and industrial practice, 6) influence of the changing industry and 7) factors affecting locations of dairy industry facilities and of educational institutions involved in specialized discovery, education and service.

Key Words: education, dairy foods, issues